Em-Power engages Dyke Yaxley to address its multi-national accounting and tax needs

Founded in California in 1994, EM-Power is a business consulting and human resource training company focused on providing customised solutions. EM-Power’s coaching programs include management development and training, general sales improvement, process enhancement, and re-engineering strategies. Their professionals deliver training programs directly to companies as well as provide “train the trainer” programs. Their new “Type-Academy” offering provides resources, information and consulting to support the in-depth practical application of Whole Type (as assessed by MBTI®) knowledge.

EM-Power has provided consulting services and training programs to more than 500 companies in the US and Europe including Google, PUMA, Kipling, and Service Strategies Corporation.

Overview

EM-Power was established as an S-corporation in the US in 1994. As the company continued to grow and expand its programs globally, it was incorporated in the UK in 2004. Shortly thereafter, it became apparent that there was a need to work with one tax professional who understood the individual and business tax regulations and reporting requirement for doing business in both the UK and US.

Accountant” based in Canada, each handling their respective country’s financial and worldwide tax reporting requirements. After experiencing several missed filing dates and feeling as though their business matters weren’t being holistically reviewed, EM-Power decided it was time for a change. The company needed an advisor to help them effectively address their accounting requirements under one set of watchful eyes.

Challenge

Centralize the company’s financial reporting responsibilities with one firm that understands the UK and US tax and accounting nuances and implications.

EM-Power initially had three accountants, one in the UK, one in the US, and a “Worldwide the technical knowledge and attention to personal service offered by the firm.

Results

EM-Power now has a single interface with a professional and team who understand the UK and US accounting and tax requirements, add value, and provide seamless, efficient support.

Dyke Yaxley worked with EM-Power to create a single point of contact to address the company’s UK and US accounting and tax reporting requirements. The firm provides the technical expertise, business insight, and personal service necessary to address EM-Power’s current accounting needs and future business goals.

EM-Power’s tax and accounting compliance filings with all tax authorities are being met.

There is no longer a concern about missing filing deadlines or filings not accurately addressing each tax authority’s requirements. Dyke Yaxley serves as an advisor to EM-Power and a “sounding board” to share ideas, identify options, and present ‘what ifs’ to help the business meet its tax and business requirements and remain financially sound. Dyke Yaxley proactively provides ideas to challenge EM-Power’s current way of thinking and support the company’s short and long term goals. Feedback was incorporated to create a different structure, which helped the accounting process run more efficiently, and in turn, simplified the reporting process.

“Rob Whittall, Dyke Yaxley LLC’s managing partner and our primary DY contact, is easy to talk to and doesn’t come across as ‘talking at’ us,” said Derek Nash, co-founder of EM-Power. “He offers ideas and conveys information in a manner that is easy to understand and applicable. He brings a business point of view from a global and strategic perspective. We feel he has our best interest in mind.”

EM-Power was looking to focus on growing their existing business, engaging new clients, and developing new offerings while leaving the financial management and simplification of process to the Dyke Yaxley team. They have successfully achieved that goal.
